Audit

The integrity of your business is our business

The purpose of an audit goes well beyond satisfying legal requirements. It serves as a moment of truth, a genuine reflection of the state of your business. Shareholders need to know the status of their investment and the executive needs to know what strategic action is necessary going forward.

Assessing the veracity of the records is one thing, to judge their integrity we need to consider broader factors such as the industry sector in which it operates, the economics surrounding the business and how the business operates within this environment.

Our objective is to ensure that the financial statements fairly present the financial position, financial performance and cash flows of our client. We ensure compliance with the International Financial Reporting Standards and make recommendations for changes where necessary.

Horwath's approach is a sophisticated one. From the outset we use advanced technology to interrogate and audit computer systems. We identify audit risks, develop knowledge of the accounting and internal control systems, determine materiality and do an analytical review. We keep a keen eye out for fraudulent situations and corporate governance issues.

When you get our opinion on your financials, rest assured, it is a well-considered one

Client Accounting

If you can measure it, you can manage it

Accounting and financial management systems are the backbone of every business. Set up correctly, they ensure efficiency and ultimately, profitability.

Because no businesses are the same, there is no off-the-shelf solution

This includes writing up of primary books of account, preparation of monthly management accounts, cash flow statements as well as the completion of monthly statutory returns and administration of your financial affairs. Secretarial

Keeping an eye on the legal detail

- Maintain company secretarial records on your behalf, e.g., the Companies Act requires that statutory books such as minute books, a register of directors, members and officers be maintained.

Tax Compliance

Some tax regulations apply to all businesses while others will impact your business specifically. Our tax experts will help you identify these regulations while coaching you on how to predict the development of laws, regulations and standards and what potential impact they will have on your business.

Horwath will help you to develop and deploy a more tax effective compliance system of checks and balances. We're able to prepare corporate and personal tax returns. We will find ways to reduce overly high tax obligations.
